The Big Four Watches Their Movie

by RainStormer98

Category: Brave, 2012, How to Train Your Dragon
Genre: Adventure, Friendship
Language: English
Characters: Hiccup, Merida, Toothless, Will O' the Wisps
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2015-03-07 16:57:39
Updated: 2016-04-20 00:22:02
Packaged: 2016-04-27 07:45:40
Rating: K+
Chapters: 4
Words: 10,878
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: The big four, plus more all get trapped in a theater with a suspicious girl named Rain. They all watch a movie showing how they defeat Pitch and more. Slight Mericcup and Jackunzel, more on the friendship side.

1. 10 Years in the Future

A/N: This idea originated from NightFury999. After reading so many of watching the movie fanfics I always wanted to do my own. I noticed that I could never get any details or dialog right so I decided to make up my own. Hope you enjoy!

DunBroch

Merida just shot an arrow that blasted through the other arrow. When suddenly a portal swooped them all in.

Berk

Hiccup had just been chosen to kill the deadly Monstrous Nightmare, when suddenly a portal sucked them all in.

Corona

Gothel just left the tower to get Rapunzel's white paint and Flynn and the Stabbington Brothers just stole the crown, when everyone got sucked into a portal.

Burgess/Guardians

Jamie just finished his fun filled sleigh ride when the guardians were talking about how to get Jack to the North Pole. Suddenly a portal opened to take Jack, the kids and the Guardians all in.

Everyone plopped down on the floor; they all stared at each other until mayhem broke loose.

"WHERE ARE WE?"

"WHOEVER DID THIS I DEMAND YOU TO SHOW YOURSELF!"

Suddenly, from the shadows a girl with dirty blond hair and blue eyes appeared. She had brown, square like glasses and a smirk on her face. "My name is Rainstormer98, but you can just call me Rain. I'm here to show you a movie about four special people." Tuffnut snorted, "Like anyone in this room is special." Rain glared at him, she stepped closer, and said "There are actually special people in this room. Obviously you're not one."

Rain sighed, "Okay, to the theatre!" She guided them to tis large room with seats going in long rows. Rain seated everyone to their assigned seats. Rapunzel sat next Gothel (Much to Rains' disgust) Merida sat next to her Mother and three brothers as Hiccup sat next to Fishlegs. Jack sat next to North and Sandy.

"These four special people contain two girls and two boys. They all are special in their own way; one is very brave another is creative. Another one is intelligent and the other is known as the fun one."

The red curtains revealed a huge screen, everyone gasped. Rain smiled, "Let's start the movie-"

Merida cut her off, "What's a movie?" Jack gasped, "What how do you not know what a movie is?" Rain shook her head, "Jack, she's from a long time ago. A movie is a set of moving pictures." Merida nodded. Jack looked bewildered, "How do you know my name?" "Magic." She said, making a funny face.

"Shall we start?" Rain said having a huge grin upon her face.

SETTING: SCOTLAND

Merida was on one knee, her bow aiming at a faraway target. Her face was covered by her humongous red curls. The arrow flew hitting a straight bull's eye. The camera zoomed back to Merida's face which now looked much older.

Merida's mouth hung open, she looked so different. Her mother had the same expression on her face, "Wow." She breathed.

Merida inhaled then exhaled slowly, running her hand through her luscious curls. She got up from her position to go after her arrow, but she stood still.

Hiccup looked confused, "Why isn't she moving?" Rain shushed him, "You'll see."

Dark sand blew from the ocean she could see in the distance. Merida looked frightened, but determined, she started running to her destination.

Pitch smirked noticing that was his sand, he wonder what he would do.

SETTING: DUNBROCH CASTLE

A chest swung open, revealing an emerald. Merida took it and attached it to an arrow.

"What is an emerald going to do?" questioned Snotlout.

She ran to the roof noticing the black sand not going near the castle. **

MERIDA: Huh?

She started to see there was a force field. How did it get there? She wondered. Merida shook her head and shot the jeweled arrow. It broke through the force field, exploding in the sky creating an aurora.

Everyone gasped, the guardians too, they noticed it was the same aurora they used for signaling the team. "She is trying to get the other three. You know of the big four." Merida stood silent; she was a part of the big four? She didn't think she was _that_ special.

SETTING: BURGESS

Jack was frosting up a tree, making the leaves slowly fall off. He watched the kids around him play. His eyes wondered to the sky, as he noticed the aurora he gasped.

Jack was speechless, him? An invisible human being with weird ice powers was part of a special group?

SETTING: BERK

Hiccup was fixing the calibration on his flight suit. He looked upwards to see the aurora flowing across the sky. He looked down at the flight suit and shook his head. He whistled signaling Toothless.

Hiccup was in shock in awe, the useless person he was, was in this special group? The village's mouths hung open, this was Hiccup he was awfully handsome too, but who was he signaling?

Suddenly a huge black dragon swooped from out of the camera's view. It landed in front of Hiccup, its scales reflecting off the sunset in the distance.

Hiccup sucked in his breath, why did Toothless have to show up? The village stared at the screen in confusion, how could he get that close to a dragon without killing it? Fishlegs broke the villages' thoughts as he wondered out loud, "I wonder what dragon that is?" The village groaned.

Hiccup smiled and scratched Toothless's 'sweet spot'. The dragon purred in delight, before its eye wondered to the sky. The aurora shone brighter, the dragon gurgled with worry.

HICCUP: It's okay bud.

Stoick was shaking with anger, "HICCUP! HOW COULD YOU BEFRIEND A DRAGON, THEY ARE OUR ENEMIES!" Hiccup winced at the loudness and he was pretty sure everyone else in the theatre did.

Rain shook her head, her hand slapped against her forehead, "Stoick, please. All will be explained in the movie. Now shush!" Everyone went silent in the theatre.

Hiccup leapt onto the back of Toothless and hooked the harness to his flight suit. They took off in the sky, making the illusion the sun was swallowing their form altogether. **

Stoick sighed; he mumbled a quiet, "Oh great, now he's riding it."

SETTING: CORONA

The camera zoomed into the Corona castle; a transition formed and slowly showed Rapunzel knitting a nice scarf. Her eyes were so intent on what she was creating she couldn't feel Pascal nudging her shoulder. Her short brown hair was more groomed than choppy. **

Rapunzel gaped at this movie, showing what her future is like. She touched her hair to make sure her long locks were there. Why was she in a castle? And when did she become so special? No one should know, she's been stuck in a castle all her life.

Gothel felt a little uneasy with this. Her plan could be found out in no time, but with the dumbness of Rapunzel and the rulers of Corona she was sure to be ok for now.

Her eyes soon flickered to Pascal.

RAPUNZEL: Hey Pascal, I know you're still used to us playing games, but I like my alone time.

Pascal could be heard doing an audible sigh. His tail pointed towards the window located directly in front of Rapunzel. She placed her knitting tools down and walked towards the window. Her eyes widened at the sight of the purplish-green aurora. **

RAPUNZEL: Pascal! Where did I last put North's snow globe?

North eyed the screen suspiciously, _how did she get one of my snow globes? _

Rapunzel dug through a familiar brown satchel and found the new-looking snow globe. The snow piled on the bottom as a hint of magic swirled with it.

Flynn stared confusingly at the satchel, it looked just like his. He glanced at the Stabbington Brothers at the top of the row, he quickly turned back to the screen, noticing their displeased faces.

Rapunzel twirled the globe in her hands, she shook her it, imagining the place she wanted to visit.

RAPUNZEL: To DunBroch castle.

A view of the Scottish castle formed into the globe.

The children oohed at the magical scene.

Rapunzel chucked the globe to her window, right before it smahed through, the portal bursted open creating an illusion like you were going through a galaxy in the speed of light.

She jumped in and disappeared into the portal, along with Pascal.

SETTING: SCOTLAND

Merida watched the sky intently, worrying over her land. Her hands were shaking and as her lip trembled with fear. She bit down on it, her head going to the ground as her clump of hair followed. **

"Wow lass, Ah've ne'ver seen ye tha' scared." Fergus whispered to his daughter. She sneered playfully at her father and whacked his arm.

Merida clenched the bow in her hand and quietly calmed herself. Her hair started to blow in one direction, her curls were now covering her entire face. She started to lose balance from the force of wind being blown against her.

The wind stop to see her curls in frenzy, but it revealed her hotheaded face. Jack landed on the roof with her, his staff making him regain balance from the fast flight.

JACK: Long time, no see, Frizzball.

"Frizzball?!" Merida yelled across the theatre, she was now standing facing the white haired teen. Jack put his hands up in surrender, "Sorry, but remember this is in the future. So don't blame it on me, blame it on him." He said, pointing to his figure frozen on screen.

Merida groaned, "But he's you-and, but-ugh." She gave up and sat back down waiting for the movie to start up again.

MERIDA: Still playing that game, Frostface?

Eleanor glared at Merida for being unladylike in the presence. Merida rolled her eyes at her mothers demands, she could already tell from the look in her mothers eyes that she shouldn't of said that, but still...that wasn't her now.

Suddenly a portal ripped through the air, the inside swirling like crazy with colors everywhere. Out came Rapunzel, she tumbled out and landed straight onto her bum.

The crowd winced at her fall.

Rapunzel helped herself up to stand on the roof. Her eyes shifted to Merida and Jack as a huge grin covered her face.

RAPUNZEL: Merida!

She leapt into her friends arms and Merida returned the hug. They broke apart and Rapunzel turned her vision, to Jack. She scowled at him, as he spread out his arms, awaiting a hug from her.

JACK: What? No hug?

RAPUNZEL: I'm still mad at you about the hair thing.

She pet her short brown locks with a sad expression. The angle of the camera turned to a smirking Merida.

Rapunzel looked over to the white haired spirit, "So you were the one who cut my hair?" Jack groaned and yelled, "So are you trying to make everyone hate me?" He glared at Rain.

Rain smiled and shook her head, "No. Though I can if you want me to." Jack shook his head violently and Rain started to resume the movie.

MERIDA: I swear that shard of glass was so close to her face, your lucky for your good aiming.

The people gasped, even Pitch looked surprised towards Jack. Bunny tisked, "A shard of glass? Throwing it to a poor girls face?" Jack sneered at Bunny, "For your information, _Cottontail,"_ Bunny scowled at the word, "I was probably doing it for a good reason."

Jack rolled his eyes, his staff now curled up beneath him as his chin rested on it. Merida was looking over at Rapunzel who now looked pretty irritated.

JACK: You should all be praising me right now, I saved your life!

RAPUNZEL: Okay, I'll give you that.

"See!" Jack bursted out, agreeing with himself onscreen.

Merida was gazing at the sky, her eyes scanning the clouds. Rapunzel followed her trail of vision and looked back down.

RAPUNZEL: Hiccup should be here by now, the aurora should've gotten to Berk quicker than Corona or Burgess.

Hiccup's ears perked at the metion of his name onscreen.

Merida's vision was back on the group, she nodded, facing Jack in suspicion.

MERIDA: Present day Burgess, you mean. By the way, how were you the first to get here when your all the way back 2012.

The villages gaped, that was like a bijillion years from now.

Jack was about to answer but the screech of a familiar dragon was heard, a black blur came racing to the roof. It landed with a thud as a figure hopped off, he changed the section of his leg and it rotated to a one that made him capable to walk.

The villiage of Berk and especially Hiccup, gasped. His leg was missing and was replaced by a prosthetic. Hiccup shifted his left foot to make sure it was still there.

Merida gaped at his tallness and her hands went to cover her tinted pink cheeks. She groaned into her hands as the others stared.

MERIDA: I think I shrunk.

The theatre burst out laughing at her comment. Merida's face was red from embarressment.

Hiccup chuckled, while Rapunzel started to bumbard him with questions.

RAPUNZEL: How's being cheif going?

Hiccup sighed, the last thing he wanted was to be cheif. Stoick turned to look at Hiccup, maybe there was still hope for Berk.

HICCUP: Alright I guess, just still cleaning up.

The group understood, ever since the Drago accident he's been pretty down. The distruction was a lot to clean up and Merida never got to formally go to the big Stoick funeral.

MERIDA: Heh, sorry I didn't go-to well...

"Go to what!?" Snotlout screamed. He wanted her to get to the point, eve though he realized he was talking to a frozen figure on a screen. Rain shifted uncomfortably and mumbled, "It's best you don't know."

Hiccup nodded, understanding her absence for the last few years. **

HICCUP: It's fine, I knew it was around the time of your cornoration.

Eleanor was surprised, Merida agreed to be queen. She was sure her daughter would've just ran away with her beloved horse and die of doing her dare devil stunts.

Merida on the other hand was okay with being queen, even though it took much responsibilities she knew she could handle them. She didn't need a man also, with her father teaching her fighting tactics and moves in war she could easily prepare or even lead one.

MERIDA: That reminds me, Rapunzel how are you with being queen?

"Queen!?" Rapunzel shouted, now standing with full shock. The kingdom of Corona was starting to fill with whispers. Some yelled, "Is she the lost princess?" Gothel gulped and turned to Rain who was sighing and looked up at Rapunzel, "This will all be revealed in the movie, alright?"

The kingdom calmed down at waited for the movie to continue.

Rapunzel shrugged, smiling along.

RAPUNZEL: It's okay, better than I thought.

MERIDA: Any kids yet?

Rapunzel stared wide eyed at the scene playing out in front of her.

Rapunzel shook her head, her hands folding in front of her stomach.

RAPUNZEL: No, I have the same problem as my mom...

The group nodded as Jack decided to speak up from his loss of words.

JACK: So, why did you signal us?

MERIDA: Pitch is back.

Pitch smiled evily at the screen, defeating these poor kids would be easy.

HICCUP: Wait, what do you mean Pitch is back? We defeated him.

North stared approvingly at the screen, Manny must've chosen the right group of people to fight evil.

MERIDA: I-I mean I think it's him, same sand as last time.

The group sighed at Merida's stuborness. They were all about to tell Merida that she should've called them if she knew it was Pitch, but when Rapunzel turned around her eyes widened. Black sand came swirling towards them, the forcefield vanished as it came hurdling towards the castle.

JACK: Yep, it's Pitch.

MERIDA: See! Now what's the plan?

RAPUNZEL: Plan? There's no time for a plan, run!

The group ran inside of castle as they followed Merida to a safe zone. They all sat in a damp closed off area, the walls were thick and the door was locked tight. No windows were located in the room.

HICCUP: So is now a good time for a plan?

The rest nodded and started to think of a plan themselves. Then they all tried to think of how they last defeated Pitch. And here's where you'll find out.

The screen went black then in big bold letters filled with the color white was shown on the screen, it said:

10 YEARS AGO

"Wait, wait...ten years ago? Why the sudden throwback?" Asked Jack. Rain answered a grin plastered on her face, "It's going to show how you guys all met and became the big four, and how you all defeated Pitch.

"Phew! I thought that was the end." Jack replied back. Rain shook her head, "No, no.. this is only the beginning."

A/N: YES! I've been trying to get this chapter done for so long, I started this back in November and totally forgot about it. These will be updated slowly as I try to figure out a plot. I had one, but I forgot so...Sorry if the ending to it was crappy just couldn't find out a way to make it go back 10 years. Hope you enjoy it, Favorites and Reviews are appreciated! ~Rain

2. Winter and Summer

A/N: New chapter yay! Sorry for the wait. So most of these chapters are going to be dealt with how the Big four handle their life like off-screen. So this chapter is based off of Merida and Jack's life.

Dragonpixie: I am aware Hiccup is with Astrid. To inform you I am doing Slight Mericcup and Jackunzel, but nothing intense.
**

T-Biggz: Thanks for telling me ^-^ I'll keep that in mind for my other Mericccup stories.

On with the chapter!

* * *

>The camera zoomed over the land of DunBroch. It showed a forest, it's autumn leaves sparkled with orange and reds. It's warm glow brought the feeling of the cool winds blowing against the trees. The crunching of leaves is heard in the background, soon zooming in to show brown flats slowly walking against the browned leaves.

It zooms out to show the familiar redhead girl in her normal age of sixteen. Her face full of excitement and adventure, her ocean blue orbs scanning the colored woods. She clenched her bow in one hand and the other was flowing freely. **

Eleanor smiled at her daughter's enthusiasm, she started to second guess the arranged marriage.

Suddenly a mist of black sand raced past Merida. Her curls whipped her face as her eyes grew with curiosity. She bit her lip and eyed one of the tall trees standing near her.

North had a bad feeling about this, he felt it, in his recognized his sand once again, soon getting anxious of finding out the destruction he might cause.

A transition follows to the next scene showing Merida up her way to the top of the tree, her hands reaching for the nearest branches. Once she reaches the top, her head peeks out from the leaves covering the tree below it.

Eleanor regrets her decision of maybe letting her daughter be free from her princess duties, but these actions flickering on the screen makes for some serious discipline.

The view is mesmerizing, all the camera showed was the treetops with the light creamy orange skies complimenting the autumn leaves. It also showed the black sand object dashing through the treetops' leaves, as a portal opens. It looks like an endless void, but the object swoops into it, making the portal close in a snap.

Trails of sand filter down through the leaves, leaving a very confused, but astonished Merida. Her thoughts vanished when the neigh of a familiar horse is heard from the grounds. **

MERIDA: (groans) Och, Angus, Ah'm fine. Can't Ah have ma own free time?

Her head that was facing down slowly moved upwards to face where the portal once was. Excitement once again beamed into her expression, as she bit her lip trying to force down a smile, but failed. It could be shown in her emotions that she was up for an adventure like this.

"If I were you, Red, I wouldn't be chasing after Pitch's nightmares." Merida rolled her eyes at Jack's new nickname for her, she enjoys her placement with a special group, _but why'd he have to be there._

"Jack's right, Pitch is a dangerousâ€”uh thingâ€”" "Hey!" "It's best you don't interfere with him."

Rain smiled at Tooth's protectiveness, "Thank you for that Tooth, but just to clarify, you're talking to the on-screen Merida, this Meridaâ€”" The girl said, pointing to the redhead seated in the chairs behind her, "Can't change anything about it."

Tooth nodded, "Well, for the girl on the screen, she'd better bring some weapons."

Eleanor eyed the colorful ladyâ€”or bird. Her feathers darkened with no lighting, but the huge pixel screen, her eyes shined a purple. Looking over to her daughter, she saw acceptance, something Eleanor never gave her. _She's a lady, dangerous acts like these are prohibited. _

Merida's smile widened, finally she's gotten acceptance to do what she loves, just not from the one she wants acceptance from.

The screen fades, filling up the screen with blackness. It stays like that for a few moments till a familiar cheer is heard.

JACK: Woo-Hoo!

The screen snaps open filled with color, showing the blues and whites. Jack's figure is shown flying through the air, a gust of wind carrying him. He's shown wearing a frosted blue hoodie, with ripped brown pants, leather bands were tied above the ankles and pressed against the fabric.

Jack smiled at himself, knowing the feeling of being completely free. Instead he's trapped in this stuffy theater with a crazy witch and old timey people.

His staff matched the pace of speed Jack was going, as he passed objects the clink of his staff was heard and ice slithered out. **

It was day time as people could be seen carrying groceries to their cars or walking their dogs. Jack zoomed pass them, the wind making their balance become uneven as their hair flew everywhere. **

PEDESTRIAN: Whoaâ€”no, noâ€”whoa! **

JACK: (chuckles)

He zipped past the people and flew to an upbeat neighborhood, the kids were out walking and playing in the snow. Jack landed on the frozen lake he calls home, he never knew why, but he felt connected to it somehow. **

He flew near a three kids, JAMIE, CLAUDE and CALEB. The wind he carried knocked over the book Jamie had.

The three kids that were shown of screen pointed and cheered at their appearance in the movie.

Jamie tried to keep holding onto the book he was reading, but it fell face down onto the muddy ground. Jack scanned the book then looked at JAMIE who picked up the book and dusted it off.

JACK: Huh, that looks interesting. Good book?

Jamie, not believing in him, ignored the words the spirit spoke. **

Jamie starred confusingly at what just happened. "Wait, wait. If this already happened early today, then why don't I know you?"

Jack sighed, "It's complicated, kid." The other Guardians nodded, agreeing with Jack's answer. Rain turned back to the movie, and clicked the remote. "You'll find out soon, anyway."

Jamie caught up with his friends and pointed to a certain page in his book.

JAMIE: Guys! Bigfoot is out there, he's real!

Suddenly twins Claude and Caleb, come barreling past them, *rough-housing and laughing as they slam each other into drifts.

CLAUDE AND CALEB: Alright! Yeah! Waahoo! Snooow daaaay!

JACK: You're welcome!

A transition follows to show the kids in Jamie's backyard. Jamie is intensely reading his book as he walks towards the twins. SOPHIE, Jamie's little sister hops down the stairs following their dog Abby.  Sophie falls after slipping on the last step, she catches her fall on her knees, but overreacts and starts to cry. Jamie annoyingly looks up from his book and turns to Sophie. **

JAMIE: (groans in annoyance) Mom! Sophie fell again!

Hiccup looks over to the boy, who was quite younger than him. "You're very caring." Jamie's eyes, which were glued onto the screen, scanned over to the Viking boy. Catching onto his sarcastic remark, he replied back, "Why, thank you. I always knew my sister could count on me."

The mom of the two kids opens the back door and rushes to Sophie's side. Noticing Sophie is fine she grabs a hat off the railing and marches over to Jamie. She places the blue and red-striped hat and squeezes it onto Jamie's head.  JAMIE'S MOM: Jamie, hat? Don't want Jack Frost nipping at your nose.

JAMIE: Who's Jack Frost?

Jamie watches the screen carefully, he hasn't noticed the boy with obvious white hair on screen, then why can he notice him off-screen? Jack sighs, the feeling of being ignored shoots through him again. He might be happy with the feeling of knowing now people can see and believe in him now, but he still wishes they always could.

JAMIE'S MOM: No one honey, it's just an expression.

The camera tilts over to Jack who is on top of a wooden fence. His feet are crossed over as his staff hangs over them. His face, which was full of happiness, soon dropped as he was clearly offended.

JACK: Hey!

An idea pops through his head, he bends down and scoops up a pile of snow. He breathes on it and small icy sparkles and snowflakes form around it. The shade of blue is more noticed.  Jack gets ready to chuck it at the little boys head, when a spark of black sand flies by him. The snowball drops, the snow forming normally into a clump as Jack's gaze turned to the fast flying sand. He grips his staff and jumps quickly into the air and flies after it. **

Pitch, who was now clearly annoyed nothing was happening with his black sand, watched intensely. He watched the weird witch girl fiddled with the remote. "Umm, excuse me." The movie stopped and the attention of the crowd went to Pitch. "Am I going to do anything or is this whole movie about these kids following _my _black sand?"

Rain sighed, "You're very impatient for a man who's been preparing for a war since the Dark Ages." The villages stifled a laugh, some let out a small chuckle. "But, to answer your question, something will happen with you. You just have to wait, we aren't even ten minutes in." Rain said, checking her watch. She then continued the movie and the crowd turned to see what happened next.

Jack chases the nightmare, it jumps over buildings and through them. Sand sprinkled down from the trail it left behind. Jack watched a portal open, he couldn't see where it lead as the nightmare hopped too fast into it. His hand met the portal's opening, but didn't make it. It closed shut, making Jack sigh.

Merida glared at the screen before facing the winter spirit, "And ye were tha one who said Ah shouldn't be chasin' those sand things." Jack groaned, "Well I can't stop myself on there." "And neither could Ah."

Rain muttered to herself, then faced the two bickering teens. "It would be great if you two stop yelling, you can always do that _after_ the movie." They both faced the witch, then back at the frozen screen. "Fine." They both said through clenched teeth.

And with that, the movie continued.

* * *

>AN: Sorry for the wait! I was very busy (or lazy) and I had MAJOR writers block at one point. I cut out a few scenes to make the introductions shorter. I'm still trying to work on character development through the four. REMEMBER THIS IS SLIGHT MERICCUP AND JACKUNZEL. Since I'm deleting my update. Shooting from the Heart might not be up for one or two weeks so please be patient! Favorites and Reviews are appreciated! ~Rain

3. Fall and Spring

SETTING: BERK

The camera zooms over a snowy mountain to reveal the fiery night of Berk. The snow that would be placed there, melted from the amount of heat mostly from dragons. The area was flooding with dragons, all of them there to raid the land for food. **

The vikings sighed, their life was mostly like this. They did not understand the dragons were doing this for their own protection, not just to raid random islands for fun. Though, the dragons did love the amount of cod the vikings always had and how the were always fresh.

Vikings could be seen leaping in the air ready to slice the dragons or capture them with handy ropes. The camera zoomed over to a stone built house, a Zippleback's head popped out with gas shooting out. Another head from the dragon jumped out, sparks flying from its mouth. The house exploded with fire causing more vikings to attack the dragon for ruining a nicely built house.

The other villages started to feel bad for the misfortune of vikings. Some of the children were yelling for the awesomeness of destruction, Tuff and Ruff decided to join in on the chanting. Other children winced at the houses being destroyed, feeling bad for whoever took their time to build them.

The camera shifts over to a familiar home of a familiar viking.

**

Hiccup forms a smile, being happy for the attention he was now getting.

Inside the house it shows Hiccup doodling in his notebook, his eyes following where his coal pencil traced along the tinted paper. He gripped his pencil tightly as his mouth moved.

HICCUP: (mumbles) Stay inside...blah blah blah

Stoick glared at his son for mocking his words. Even though he was his father he was still the chief and his son had to follow his rules too. Hiccup on the other hand, couldn't agree with himself more. He hated being pushed around by everyone since he was the _hiccup _of the group. The teens his age got to do whatever they wanted while he was known to mess everything up.

Occasionally he did mess everything up, but being told not to didn't change anything.

Suddenly a familiar screech was heard which made a grin form on Hiccup's face. He snatched some papers that were ripped out from his notebook and took off. A torn paper fell from his grip onto the floor, the camera zoomed up on it leaving the noise of the door slamming shut. The paper held Hiccup's mighty invention that launched bola's into the air. **

Gobber eyed the invention and he thought it didn't look that bad. But knowing Hiccup in his mind, that invention would back fire like all his other ones.

Flames still illuminated off of the villagers faces as the strong fought to defend and the weak hid in a safe shelter. Hiccup's small frame could be seen running and pushing his invention across the land.

Stoick sighed, his son never listened to him. He'd surely like to know why his son was chosen for such an important group.

Hiccup stopped near a cliff, gazing up at the sky the stars twinkling. **

HICCUP: (talking to himself) C'mon...C'mon give me something to shoot at Suddenly a black figure sprinted across the sky, no screech was heard just sounds of wood burning from afar. Confused, Hiccup shot at the figure, he saw the bola fly far into the night. His eyes still followed the figure covering the stars.

Most of the villages were at the edge of their seats, awaiting for the reveal.

A sound filled the screen (and the theater) with a splitting sound. A portal ripped through the sky to see the figure leap into the portal, the light illuminating the sky to show Pitch's nightmare disappear into the light.

Most of the villages looked confused until one spoke up. "So please explain why those animal things are traveling to every place where these special people are." Astrid said, still slightly confused.

Rain stopped the movie then turned to all the villages waiting for answers. "Well, maybe it's a message." She smirked, then pressed play as a new scene unfolded and left the villages drowned in their thoughts.

SETTING: CORONA

A transition flowed through the screen to reveal the kingdom of Corona, the lively town dancing with joy. Smiles placed on every citizen except one. The camera zooms closer to reveal a hidden woman in a cotton cloak. It seemed to be the only black or dark fabric placed in the area making this certain person stand out. **

The hood of her cloak flipped back to reveal sprayed down black curls. Her brown colored eyes dimmed as she wore no smile. In her hand was a woven basket with decorated swirls on it, it contained some bread and fruit. **

Gothel frowned at herself on screen, noticing the basket in her hand she could tell she was returning back to her daughter. (Well not really.)

Gothel could be seen walking on the bridge into the woods, heading to see the soon 18 year old girl.

SETTING: RAPUNZEL'S TOWER

A transition followed to show a tall tower with vines wrapped around it, flowers potted or growing on the ground. Long blond hair fell from the tower, almost reaching the brightly shining grass. **

Everyone gaped at how long the hair of the girl was. Rain smirked at all their surprised expressions. "I'm shocked none of you noticed her," The witch pointed to Rapunzel, "in the theater already." Suddenly, all their eyes turned to girl sitting in the cushy theater seat who's figure was frozen on the screen.

Rapunzel's face blotched with red from embarrassment. Her strands fell in front of her face to hide her emotions. The King and Queen glanced at the girl, still they could not tell if she was their daughter. For they always believed she had died or been shipped off to a far away land.

The camera zooms up onto the tower to reveal the inside. Rapunzel moved away from her current position and started to slowly walk towards her magnificent painting of the lights.

RAPUNZEL: (singing) _Maybe this year will be the year I get to go outside_

Gothel silently groaned, Rapunzel always sang when she either talked about the outside or the lights.

Her figure was now climbing on top of a platform. Her fingers gripped the side of a red velvet curtain and pulled it back. It revealed half of her new painting.

The theater waited to see what the other half would look like.

Her other hand slowly made it's way to the other hanging curtain and pushed it aside to show her dazzling painting of dim glowing lights hovering over trees of all kinds. **

The crowd gasped, noticing the little details she seemed to include in her painting.

RAPUNZEL: _Maybe this day will be the day I get to see the lights_

She continued her singing and picked up a brush and dabbed it in paint.

RAPUNZEL: _I'll get to run around town, and meet new friends_

Her fingers clutched the paint brush and swirled the tip against her painting against the wall.

RAPUNZEL:_ I'll hopefully get to see the lights before this day...ends_

Her mouth closed as she slowly scooted away only to uncover the new addition. It included herself perched upon one of the illuminated trees. Her face looked up, though it was covered by her hair which was dangling off the branches. **

The villages smiled at her wonderful creation, hoping she'd get to fulfill her dream. Rapunzel sighed happily, imagining herself near the floating lanterns that ended up always flowing through the sky on her birthday.

They all seated patiently and calmly, still soothed by Rapunzel's soft voice singing a beautiful melody.

She stood from her position and hopped down from the platform she seated on. Her feet collided with floor and she once again made her way towards the window, enjoying the feeling of what outside might be like. **

Winds started to pick up around her, her once newly brushed hair now being thrown in different directions. Her walls were being torn and disintegrated into sand. The sand turned black and formed a familiar nightmare.

Rapunzel watched wide-eyed, the black horse didn't seemed to bother any of the other special people, but it could try harming her.

On-screen Rapunzel stared at the nightmare in awe, not knowing the darkness it held. The animal made out of particles sneered at her, light gray smoke appearing from it's nostrils. It pranced towards her, it's glowing gold eyes shone brightly into hers.

Rapunzel now seemed frightened and backed away, but couldn't anymore when her back met with the wall. The winds died down and the horse's attention was now at the window and not at the teenage girl.

It glanced back at Rapunzel, giving one last huff before vanishing against the sunlight. Rapunzel's breath slowed as she slid against the wall trying to figure out what exactly happened.

Some of the villagers tried to put the pieces together of why the nightmares were going after the four kids. Gothel was just glad her little flower was not harmed, but she still had a twist in her gut knowing her conclusion was wrong.

Rapunzel's eyes went to the window where the nightmare had disappeared. She stood and walked over, gently leaning against it. She gazed at the sun, her eyes not being harmed for the sun was soon blocked by the tall trees hiding her from the outside world.

RAPUNZEL: Hey, I know I just read about sun spirits and moon spirits in books, but if you are real hear me out

She used her hands to help herself lean forward a little bit more.

RAPUNZEL: (pleading) I just (sniffle) want to have my dream come true

She stared at the lowering sun and turned away.

RAPUNZEL: (scoffs) Maybe mother is right, I shouldn't believe in stupid books anymore

The guardians sadly watched the scene unfold. Jack especially knew what the girl was feeling, he didn't seem to believe that a moon could talk to him, but it did. And still, he wished for wishes he knew couldn't come true, but Rapunzel's dream was easy to achieve.

A smirk formed on his face, he'll surely bust her out of the tower. But then he realized the situation he was in, _right, I'm stuck in a theater with no way of getting out and she's on a movie screen._

Rain, having the ability to read minds, wanted to get him out to free Rapunzel. But she herself had to let everyone watch the movie, she moved her attention to the faded screen and waited. And like always the theater waited for the movie to continue too.

* * *

>AN: Sorry for the wait! I've been SUPER busy and I just couldn't push myself to do this. Sorry if it's short, but I'll try my best to make the next one longer. Thanks for being patient, Favorites and Reviews are appreciated! ~Rain

4. The Chosen Four

"Before I continue with the movie, this takes place a week after the events of the four seeing Pitch's nightmares." Rain said, facing the theater. Once getting nods of agreement, she let the movie resume.

SETTING: THE NORTH POLE

The camera pans through the clouds to reveal a MASSIVE ICE CANYON, and just around the bend, the magical fortress of NORTH appears.

"Wow." The children breathed, mesmerized from seeing the hidden workshop of Santa.

SETTING: INSIDE NORTH'S WORKSHOP

The camera zooms outwards to reveal a man wearing a large RED JACKET and the CUFFS trimmed a lighter red. A pair of tongs slam into a block of ice, a quick transition happens and then a chainsaw whirls through the ice, carving a toy train. **

"Showing off a little bit, eh North? Easter is much better than a little toy train." Bunny suddenly interrupts, grinning, his furry arms crossed.

North groans, "Here we go again."

Then Jacks cuts in, "But a train made of _ice._ You've got to admit that is pretty cool."

North smiles, while Bunny mutters, "Always taking his side."

NORTH: Still waiting for cookies!

THREE ELEVES are shown, enjoying their time licking and nibbling on the cookies until North's booming voice shocks them. One lets bits of cookie slide out of its mouth.

The audience groans in disgust at the elves actions.

The elves push the plate towards North as he his distracted tinkering his ice sculpture. **

NORTH: Yes!

He takes the cookie, throwing it in his mouth, before continuing on with his work. **

"Disgusting!" Hiccup spoke, sticking his tongue out.

"Says a vikin'." Merida adds.

Suddenly, a GREY YETI, slams the door open, spluttering nonsense to the busy guardian. North takes a breath to collect himself.

NORTH: How many times have I told you to knock?

YETI: Warga blhargara!

Rapunzel stared at the screen in wonder, her hand rested against her chin while she pondered.

"In all the books I've read, I've never come across a language like that." The blond spoke.

North chuckled, "Well it is a language the yeti's have come up with and I've struggled to learn."

NORTH: (shock) What? The globe?

North launched out of his chair, leaving the three mischievous elves to dive back into the Christmas cookies.

SETTING: NORTH'S GLOBE ROOM

A sea of elves with their nosy bells, crowd around the GLOBE OF BELIEF, watching the lights flicker on and off. North stands at the controls, trying to figure out what was happening. Soon thousands of lights start to flicker off.

NORTH: (to the yeti's) Have you checked the axis? Is rotation balanced?

Pitch smiled evilly, knowing his plan was slowly falling into place.

The yeti's around him shrugged unknowingly. Then, a powerful wind whips through the palace, BLACK SAND swirls around the globe, engulfing it in darkness.

Sandy twirls his golden sand in his hands, analyzing Pitch's sand with his. Connecting two and two together (_is that the saying? I'm too lazy to look it up_) Sandy turned to give a deathly glare to the nightmare king.

Pitch laughed, "There's nothing you can do, I'm protected."

Everyone looked at Rain who had just paused the movie. She sighed, "In my rights it says that anyone I bring into the future or past, it might tamper with their normal lives if they get hurt, so I have to keep them from harm at all times." She mutters to herself, obviously annoyed Pitch won't get what he deserves.

"So say I do something wrong, because you know I will," Hiccup starts, "I won't get attacked?"

"Right, even if I bring Toothless into here, I will try to stop them from hurting him." Rain replies.

"Try?" Hiccup asks, worriedly. "Can't you just freeze them with your magic?"

Rain sighs, "Magic is very complicated, Hiccup. Anyways! We're off topic, back to the movie!"

The black sand plummets to the ground in a rush, disintegrating as it reaches the floor. It reveals the globe in healthy shape, sparkling glowing lights surrounding the earth. A SHADOW appears on the decorated marble, its laugh familiar to all. **

NORTH: Can it be? (turns to elves) Dingle!

A group of elves step forward pointing to themselves, thinking they are named "Dingle". **

NORTH: Make preparations! We are going to have company **

North faces the control board, pulling then turning an EMERGENCY LEVER, he pushes it. The camera moves upwards to face the globe which was emitting the northern lights to the sky. **

SETTING: TOOTH PALACE

Millions of FAIRIES flutter around the gigantic palace, carrying teeth to their destination. The fairies disperse to reveal their leader, the TOOTH FAIRY.

The children of Burgess look in awe at the colorful feathered fairy.

Sophie cheers at the guardian she loves, "Tooth! Tooth!"

Tooth is seen to be very excited, her wings flapping at high speeds. **

TOOTH: Wait!

Everything stops, the fairies all look to see what she found.

TOOTH: (holds up tooth) It's her first tooth! Have you ever seen a more adorable lateral incisor in all of your life!?

The other guardians groaned.

"Is she always like that?" Jack asked.

"Yes." North and Bunny answered in unison, while Sandy just nodded his head.

TOOTH: (gasp) Look how she flossed!

The fairies notice the aurora in the sky and tweet rapidly to try to get Tooth's attention. Tooth stopped gushing over the perfect tooth she held and glanced up to face the flowing northern lights.

SETTING: CHILD'S BEDROOM

A child is peacefully sleeping in their bed, the camera pans out to reveal golden sand forming above their head. The child is playing soccer in the form of dream sand, their smile gets wider. The camera follows the dream sand out the window. All the sand trails to a gigantic cloud made of the same golden sand. On the cloud is the SANDMAN, controlling the dreams and directing the sand. **

He notices the signal above him and transforms his sand cloud into a plane.

Merida, now deeply concerned says, "So now that Pitch has that power, he can do that?"

Sandy once again nods.

"And we have to defeat him?" Hiccup adds, growing afraid.

SETTING: SNOWY EXPANSE IN NORTH POLE

A hole caves into the snow and two tall bunny ears pop out. They twitch, like they're sensing their surroundings. Suddenly a bunny pop out, brushing off the snow stuck to his gray fur. This six foot tall creature is BUNNYMUND. **

BUNNY: Ugh, it's freezing

He starts to hop off into the distance, trying to as fast go as he could.

BUNNY: Ah! I can't feel my feet! I can't feel my feet!

The audience laughs at his antics.

SETTING: NORTH'S GLOBE ROOM

North stands near the globe, Tooth flutters around stating orders to her incoming fairies. Sandy had just arrived, his sand plane disintegrating. **

BUNNY: Oh this better be good North

NORTH: I know, I know, but I wouldn't have called you here if it wasn't serious

Tooth shushed her fairies, facing the guardian. **

NORTH: The Boogie Man was here, at the Pole

TOOTH: (surprised) Pitch? Pitch Blackâ€¦here?

"I'm not sure why you are all surprised, you know I would come back." Pitch stated.

"Yeah, but we didn't know you would be smarter when you came back." Tooth said, knowing she just threw down a 'sick burn' as the kids called it. (_I'm so sorryâ€¦)_

Jack snorted.

North gestured towards the globe as he explained further.

NORTH: Black sand covered the globe

BUNNY: Black sanâ€”

NORTH: And there was a shadow!

BUNNY: Wait, I thought you said you saw Pitch?

NORTH: (nervous chuckle) Wellâ€”uh not exactly

BUNNY: Not exactly? Can you believe this guy?

Bunny turns to Sandy, who shrugs as a dream sand question mark forms above his head.

"Woah, you communicate like that?" Hiccup questions.

Sandy answered with a bunch of symbols popping up above his head.

Hiccup stared for a second before nodding confusingly.

BUNNY: Yeah you said it Sandy

Bunny starts painting an egg he had held.

NORTH: Look, he is up to something very bad. I feel it, in my belly

Bunny stops painting the egg to face North.

BUNNY: Hold up, you mean to tell me you summoned me here, THREE DAYS before Easter because of your belly? Mate, if did this to you three days before Christmasâ€”

NORTH: Bunny, please, Easter is not Christmas

BUNNY: Here we goâ€¦

North takes Bunny's painted egg and start to juggle it. Sandy sips some egg nog that was given to him from the elves. He notices a light start to illuminate the palace.

BUNNY: North, I don't have time for this, I've still got two million eggs to finish up!

The moon comes into view from the skylight, its light filling up more of the room. **

NORTH: No matter how much you paint, it's still egg!

Sandy points to the moon to try to get the guardian's attention, but is unsuccessful. **

BUNNY: Look mate, I'm dealing with perishables, you've got all year to prepare

Sandy puts two fingers in his mouth to try to whistle, but all that comes out is a music note above his head.

The audience groans, wanting the pair to notice the moon as urgently as on-screen Sandy does.

NORTH: Why are bunnies so nervous?

BUNNY: Why are you such a blowhard?

TOOTH: (to her fairies) Ontario, sector nine: five canines, two molars, and fourteen incisors. Is that all in one house?

Sandy waves a sand flag over his head, pointing and jumping and gesturing to the moon, but no luck. **

NORTH: (turning his attention) Tooth? Can't you see we are trying to argue?

TOOTH: Sorry, not all of us get to work one night a year. Am I right Sandy?

The theater sighs in relief, finally the argument had stopped.

Sandy quickly whips up a golden dream arrow that was pointing to the ceiling, he thinks Tooth had finally noticed, butâ€”

TOOTH: (gasps) San Diego sector two!â€”

The audience groans in unison again.

BUNNY: Come on mate, Pitch went out in the dark ages, we made sure of that â€“ remember?

"Well it seems you didn't, and now we have to do _your_ dirty work." Jack huffed, slumping in his seat.

NORTH: I know it was him. We have a serious situation!

BUNNY: Well I've got a serious situation with some eggs

TOOTH: Hey, I hate to interrupt the "We work so hard once a year club" but could we concentrate on the matterâ€”

Sandy broke, he couldn't take it anymore and grabbed the elf closest to him. He shook him hard and the bell on his hat rang loudly. The guardians stopped bickering and faced the moon that was coming into full view. **

NORTH: Ah! Man in Moon, Sandy why didn't you say anything?
**

Sandy stood there with a deadpan look before he made a mad face and smoke flew from his ears.

NORTH: It's been a long time old friend! What is big news?

The moon's light centers to one spot in the globe room, some of the light fades, revealing a shadow of PITCH. **

BUNNY: It is Pitch

North smirks and pats his belly. **

NORTH: Manny, what must we do?

The shadow fades and is replaced with four bright blue lights, the area where the lights are cave in. Four shining crystals appear on pillars that rose out of the ground. **

TOOTH: Uh guys do you know what this means?

BUNNY: Four new guardians? He has to be joking

"Excuse me, but I think my daughter is suitable enoughâ€”." Eleanor starts.

"Muuuuuuum, stop embarrassing me." Merida groans as she hides her face in her hands.

TOOTH: I wonder who they're going to be

Sandy forms a four leaf clover over his head.

BUNNY: (crossing his fingers) Please not the groundhog, please not the groundhogâ€¦

Suddenly a BRIGHT FLASH whips through the globe room, revealing a figure on the pillar. This figure was hooded and wielding a familiar staff, he was named JACK FROST.

BUNNY: Ah! I take it back, the groundhogs fine!

Jack silently glared at the large rabbit.

Another flash happened, displaying a girl with outrageous flaming red curls. She was pulling a bow and the arrow faced the ground. This girl was MERIDA DUNBROCH.

Merida smiled softly at herself displayed on the screen. It so much to see her showed as a hero and not a princess meant only to protect her kingdom, here she would protect the world.

The guardians nodded approvingly at the Scottish girl.

The same flash happened to the third pillar to unveil a gaunt boy with a small dagger in one hand and in the other, an open sketchbook. This Viking was known as HICCUP HADDOCK.

Hiccup felt a warm feeling. Amongst all these heroic-like people he was there, the mess up. Even if his father wasn't proud of him, at least the world would be, because he knew he was finally doing something right.

Then the last flash happened on the fourth pillar. Once it disappeared, it revealed a girl with long hair and a determined look on her face. In her hands was a frying, this young adult was known as RAPUNZEL CORONA. **

Rapunzel smiled widely, she was special, and she was chosen. She always thought no one knew of her, but here she was a part of a group meant to save the world.

NORTH: Well that's it, shall we start to retrieve them?

TOOTH: I call her!

The fairy pointed excitedly at Rapunzel. **

Sandy made a bunch of signals, which North deciphered as 'I choose the boy on the third pillar.'

"What did he say?" Asked Rapunzel.

"He chose the Viking." North replied.

NORTH: Then I will take the other girl, that means, Bunny, you take Jack

BUNNY: What!

Everyone laughed at his lack of luck.

SETTING: SCOTLAND

The scene starts by zooming into the forest near the castle of Dunbroch. The camera focuses on the princess with fiery curls. She clings to her Clydesdale's mane, her face covered. The forest looks gloomy, as rain pours down, dampening the surrounding trees and branches. **

The horse takes a sudden turn into a field with giant rocks forming a circle. The animal skids to a stop, launching the girl off his back.

The audience flinches at the princess's fall.

Eleanor sighs, "I told you that horse was a bad idea."

Merida crosses her arms, not caring in her mother's opinion.

MERIDA: Angus!

The princess whips her curls back, she notices the rocks and gasps. **

Then, out of nowhere, North appears. Merida still sits there, gaping. **

"Not creepy at all North." Jack comments.

NORTH: Helloâ€”

MERIDA: Who are you?

NORTH: Well, I'm Santa Claus.

MERIDA: Who?

The children of Burgess gasped. "You don't know Santa Claus?" asked Monty, surprised.

"Well, what do you expect, she probably gets whatever she wants at any time." Snotlout replied.

Merida shot him a glare.

NORTH: Never mind that, just follow meâ€”

MERIDA: Why would I follow you, someone who came out of nowhere, in the middle of nowhere? Do you knowâ€”

Merida was cut off, when a sack that usually holds presents, was thrown of her head. North grudgingly opened a portal and threw the sack containing the princess in it. **

"Really North?" Bunny asked, noticing he didn't have much etiquacy for a princess.

North shrugged, replying, "Eh, teenagers just aren't my strong suit."

SETTING: RAPUNZEL'S TOWER

The camera zooms into the tall tower containing the lost princess. The transition cuts through to blond hair. The young woman swings by, skipping towards her 'mother'. Rapunzel joyfully hands the black haired woman her cloak and basket, which was filled with apples. **

GOTHEL: Now rememberâ€”

RAPUNZEL: I know, I know, don't leave the tower. Now hurry!

Rapunzel threw her long golden hair out the window, it fell down, almost reaching the shiny green grass below. Mother Gothel kissed her daughter's cheek and climbed down the hair. **

"Doesn't that hurt?" Merida questioned, pulling at a curl. From past experiences with her mom and a brush, she knew what it felt like to get her hair viciously tugged at.

"You get used to it." Rapunzel answered, though she didn't really agree with it. It got sorer every time her mother used her hair to climb down the tower.

Rapunzel cheerfully waved at her mother until the woman was out of view. The young adult turned just in time to see a portal rip through and the Tooth Fairy enter. Rapunzel stood there, gaping.

TOOTH: Oh! Hello! I'm the Tooth Fairyâ€”but there is no time to explainâ€”

RAPUNZEL: Waitâ€”butâ€”

Rapunzel didn't get to finish her sentence as Tooth grabbed her hand and flew into the portal.

SETTING: BERK

"Okay, sorry for another interruption, but since the last scene, where Hiccup was trying to find a Night Fury,"

The groups that weren't Vikings looked confused.

"Now he has befriended it."

Hiccup walked into the cove, a basket full of fish hunched over his back. He was headed towards a sleeping black dragon. **

Stoick glared at the screen, disgusted at what his son had made friends with.

"Seriously? A dragon? You know they are our enemies." Spitelout commented, obviously trying to show what a mistake Hiccup was.

Jack scoffed, attempting to help the hated Viking, "He's trying to _help_ you. If he didn't make peace with it, then you'd all be dead."

Everyone looked surprised, but Hiccup was smiling, finally happy someone was standing up for him.

"You guys know I was alive in that time period, right? I knowâ€”" Jack was cut off by Rain.

"Jack, don't tell them their future, it's bad enough that I'm showing them how to defeat the Nightmare King."

"Wait does that meanâ€”" He shut up when the movie continued.

HICCUP: Breakfast!

The scrawny boy let the basket fall then kicked it, so the lid opened and the slimy fish piled out. The dragon woke at the sound of food and put on a joyful face. **

The Vikings were astonished at the dragon's actions.

Toothless slurped up the variety of fishes, while Hiccup looked away, clearly disgusted.

HICCUP: Oh yep, yum, slimy, uncooked, (gag) fish

Toothless finished, soon sniffing and nudging his companion to see if he had any more food. (omg this is me)

HICCUP: (chuckles) Sorry bud, that's all I had

Suddenly, a whirl of golden sand appeared and formed the guardian Sandman. Sandy immediately started to form symbols over his head to try to communicate with Hiccup (or at least Toothless). But there was no luck as Hiccup just stood there gaping at the spirit while Toothless growled. **

He sighed, giving up and forming two balls of golden sand. He threw them at both of the ancient beings and they quickly collapsed, sand creating whatever they were dreaming of.

"You too, Sandy?" Bunny asked, knowing he would try to reason with the teens. (Though, he had Jack so obviously it wasn't going to be that way)

Sandy only shrugged, almost like he was agreeing with what North had said earlier.

Sandy opened a portal, carefully levitating the two into the future. **

SETTING: BURGESS

Jack is seen slowly walking down a dark alleyway between two quiet buildings. An outline of a tall rabbit appears, it's twirling a boomerang in its paws.

BUNNY: Hello mate

Jack turns, staff pointed and ready to shoot.

JACK: (sighs in relief) Bunnyâ€¦

BUNNY: Been a long time, blizzard of '68 I believe? Easter Sunday, wasn't it?

"Are you still on about _that_?" Jack moans.

Jack lowered his staff, only to lean on the top with his arms. **

JACK: You're not still mad about that? Are you?

BUNNY: Yes, but this is aboutâ€¦something else

The rabbit glances behind Jack.

BUNNY: Fellas

Before Jack can react, a sack is thrown over his head by two yeti's. He struggles in the sack, trying to escape. The yeti's throw a snow globe, watching it open. They throw the new guardian into it, jumping after him before it closes.

Tooth rolls her eyes, "Bunny you are such a hypocrite."

Bunny follows, but through his own tunnel. **

SETTING: NORTH'S WORKSHOP

The camera is now in Jack's POV, he stumbles out of the bag, looking down at his feet. He steps on golden hair, slowly he steps back.

JACK: Is thatâ€¦hair?

The camera follows Jack's vision, it trails the hair to a young woman, gazing at the interior of the palace. Suddenly, a portal opens, North steps out, and then a sack follows, a redheaded princess falling out.

MERIDA: (groans) Ugh ma headâ€¦

Then Jack looks to his far right, where a gaunt boy rubs his head and yawns, while a black dragon naps next to him. **

JACK: Oh myâ€”

Jack's POV ends and North takes the center of the room to speak.

NORTH: Now, I'm sure you are all wondering why you are here, no?

He scans the room, waiting to hear a remark or reply, but the chosen four stand and wait for him to continue.

NORTH: Well, Man in Moon chose you to become new guardians **

JACK: Wait? The moon talks to you too? **

MERIDA: (snorts) The last time I checked, the moon doesn't talk

RAPUNZEL: Plus, scientifically, the moon orbits the Earth and is just a giant rockâ€”

The audience looked surprised at her knowledge of astronomy. Rapunzel only shrugged saying she had a lot of free time.

NORTH: Enough, enough. I'm not sure why he chose four, but it must mean Pitchâ€”

JACK: Pitch? He's back? **

HICCUP: Who's Pitch? **

TOOTH: The Nightmare King, he brings nightmares when you sleep

Sandy looks at Tooth with a glare.

TOOTH: But â€“ But of course Sandy is always there with good dreams!

HICCUP: (gulps) A â€“ And we have to â€“ to defeat him?

Snotlout laughs, "I can't believe they chose you! I would've been a much betterâ€”."

Suddenly he was frozen, Jack innocently whistled, looking away from the crime. Rain stopped the movie and unfroze the Viking teen, while giving Jack a death glare.

"If you freeze another person I will send you all back with no knowledge of how to defeat Pitch, and you do _not _want that."

Jack slumped in his seat, muttering he didn't need to be told how to act.

NORTH: It will be easy! Man in Moon told me you will all get gifts!

RAPUNZEL: Gifts? I love gifts! One time, motherâ€”

NORTH: No, no, I meant powers

JACK: Pssh, I already got powers

NORTH: But these powers will make you stronger. You see your powers will be based on what season you get, so you â€“

He pointed to Merida.

NORTH: You get summer, so you have fire, wind, and Earth

MERIDA: Cool! Can I do it now?

Eleanor sighed, "You would burn the whole place down."

Merida groaned, "I would not."

NORTH: No! You all need practice to control your powers

The camera started to move outwards and transition into a new scene.

SETTING: PITCH'S LAIR

The camera shows Pitch looking through a magical window where North was explaining everything. He was saying how Hiccup had autumn, Rapunzel spring, and Jack (obviously) had winter.

PITCH: (laughs evily) Oh how this is working out so well, you do it the long way, while I take the shortcut, your new guardians are no match for me

Pitch turned around to reveal three other magical windows.

PITCH: For I â€“ I have three better _guardians_

One window shows Gothel, trudging through the forest in search of some white flowers. The second window reveals Mordu, hunting in the deep woods of DunBroch. **

Merida felt breathless, "It â€“ It's Mordu."

Lastly, the third window shows The Red Death, sleeping amongst the pits of hell with thousands of dragons huddling in fear. **

Gobber gasped, "It's tha' Queenâ€¦"

The camera panned out, with just the echoing sound of Pitch's laughter.

The theater was dead quiet as they waited for the next scene.

* * *

>AN: GASP, I'M DONE! (with this chapter of course) OMG IT TOOK ME SO LONG I'M SOOOO SORRY! I know the last time I updated was in August, but my last real update was actually in Mayâ€¦ I made this one extra-long so you guys aren't mad that you will probably have to wait another 3 months. I know, I know, I'm just soooooooo busy! Sorry if they are any mistakes and if it doesn't feel eventful enough, I just needed to get this part done, it's very crucial. Hope you all enjoyed! Favorites and Reviews are appreciated! ~Rain

End
file.